

The Global Health Leaders Conference at Johns Hopkins University

2026 Student Speaker Series Information and Guidelines

Applying to present in the GHLC's Student Speaker Series is an optional opportunity for interested students.

A core component of the GHLC is the Student Speaker Series, where GHLC students have the opportunity to present on global health issues and learn from their peers. Each year, presentations in the SSS cover a variety of topics within the field of global health such as pandemic preparedness, food insecurity, climate change, period poverty and stigma, antibiotic resistance, cancer, mental health, and more. Regardless of topic, SSS presentations must have strong, clear relevance to the field of global health.

All accepted and registered GHLC students are eligible to apply to present in the student speaker series. However, due to the large number of students in our program this year and hundreds of expected applicants, our selection committee will be giving preference to applicants who have done work on their presentation topic. For example, a student who has ongoing or prior work on their presentation topic would be given preference over a student who has none.

For applicants who are selected, there will be one presentation medium. Students with presentations that the selection committee evaluates as the highest quality will be offered a pre-recorded presentation, with their presentation being publicly uploaded to the official GHLC at JHU YouTube channel.

Please note that we cannot accommodate all SSS applicants for the video presentation due to the large number of applicants and high quality standards for the presentations. However, we sincerely appreciate your time and efforts in applying for the 2026 SSS.

Application Information and Selection Process

To apply to present in the SSS, students will create and submit a recording of their presentation for the selection committee's review. Please be sure to dress professionally when recording the presentation. At least two reviewers will review and evaluate each submission. We prefer students to present alone, but if you chose to co-present with another accepted and registered GHLC student, please submit one application for the both of you and create only one video, being sure to include both of your information in the recording submission form as well. Presentations will be slide presentations that are 8 minutes or less that adhere to the following structure and guidelines:

Please note that your submitted video presentation should be the polished final presentation and if selected will be the presentation that will be uploaded to the GHLC YouTube.

Deadline: July 20th, 2026 11:59 Eastern Time

Your slide presentation MUST use the following slide template: 2026 GHLC Student Speaker Series Materials

We have had some questions about problems with copying the slide template files from the shared folder for Student Speaker Presentations. We believe the issue is that the folder where the copy is being created is the shared folder and not a folder you own. Double check that you are copying the template to a folder you own and it won't be a problem.

Title slide:

Your presentation title, your name, your current school/institution, the date of when you are recording the presentation.

Self Introduction:

Introduce yourself - what grade you are in, where you are from, what school you go to, some extracurricular activities you are involved in, and what your interests/future plans are (in other words, verbally sharing your professional bio). (~1 minute)

Presentation Background/Introduction:

Introduction to the topic you are presenting on and the purpose of your presentation, clearly express why/how your topic is a global health topic/issue, why your topic is important (get your audience's attention/interest), present any necessary background information to your topic. (~2 minutes)

Presentation Body:

Present/do what you said you would do in your introduction. Present information logically and in a way that is easy to follow. For students that are presenting on their own work, this is the section where you will clearly explain what you did. Main points/topics should be followed with supporting information/evidence. Be concise, feel free to use easy-to-understand figures/images (~2-3 minutes)

Conclusion:

Restate the topic and purpose of your presentation. Summarize the key takeaways, give concluding thoughts/ideas, perhaps a "call to action", or maybe a thought provoking question (~2 minutes)

References:

Please cite the sources you used to make the presentation including citations for images and figures. Any information that is not common knowledge, your own work, or your own thoughts/ideas should be cited.

Acknowledgements:

Acknowledge/thank those who were involved with or contributed to your work and presentation (these can be both individuals and organizations). Be sure to also thank the audience for listening!

Last slide:

Contact information, if you wish to provide it, for those with questions. Providing an email and LinkedIn, if you wish, is most professional. Please do not provide any social media contact information.

Please ensure all information included in your presentation is accurate. Double check all information you present such as facts or statistics with multiple reputable sources. Your presentation will reflect the credibility of not only yourself but also of our conference which is why this is very important!

Presentation Recording and Upload Instructions

Students must record themselves giving the slide presentation. We recommend using Zoom (free to download and use) to create a recording of you presenting your slides. While presenting, your video and audio must be on at all times. Formal attire while presenting is requested, and do your best to ensure that you have a professional/organized background during your presentation. Please also present from a place with no/minimal background noise. Be sure to get feedback on and practice your presentation - you are welcome to do so with friends, family members, or other students in the program. Once you have completed your recording, please upload it to a folder titled “LastName_FirstName_TITLE_OF_PRESENTATION” in YOUR Google Drive and submit the share link to the folder with EDITOR ACCESS to the to the checklist and submission form below. If you are co-presenting, please include both your names in the file title.
